ABOUT

Pancreas 2000 is the official post-graduate program of the European Pancreatic Club (EPC). The program prepares young gastroenterologists, surgeons, radiologists, and other clinicians for a specialization in the up-and-coming field of pancreatology

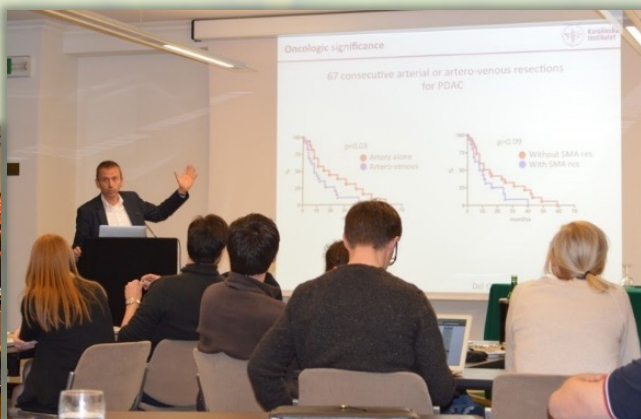

OBJECTIVES

The program is designed to ensure that both knowledge and skills are transferred from one generation of clinicians to the next. As a result, Pancreas 2000 has a direct significant impact on the field as well as on patients and the standard of care. The majority of Pancreas 2000 graduates are now leaders in the field

CURRICULUM

Three areas of focus

- 1) A high-quality, comprehensive education in all aspects of pancreatology
- 2) Training in scientific methods and the development of research skills
- 3) Leadership, personal development, and scientific research methods

BENEFITS

- ✔ Access to an extensive network of leading pancreatologists across Europe
- ✔ Opportunity to participate in a research project and publish under the leadership of experienced mentors
- ✔ Build a strong network of peers to support further career development
- ✔ Transition to the Young Pancreatology Professionals in Europe (YOUPIIE) network upon graduation

OUTCOMES

- ✔ Over 200 successful graduates who are now leaders in the field
- ✔ Over 100 high-quality publications in leading journals
- ✔ Countless abstracts and presentations at major scientific events

WHY SPONSOR?

Sponsors are recognized at meetings and on the Pancreas 2000 website. In addition, sponsors are strongly encouraged to attend the meetings and take the opportunity to directly interact with participants.

Finally, your support contributes directly to the further development of pancreatology and pancreatic surgery
